

XII SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

The Virtue of Humility and Stewardship

Humility does not mean that you think less of yourself; that serves no purpose. God wants you to use your gifts well, for your own needs, and at least as well for the good of others. Acknowledging that life itself, and all the good things in life, are God's gift, is an expression of humility. Knowing that God gives you your talents and abilities for the greater good, as well as your own needs, should give you a 'healthy humility' and the God-grounded confidence to boldly and generously share your gifts in ways that give glory to Him.

XIII SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

The Virtue of Trust and Stewardship

When we put our trust in at-risk things like, jobs, possessions and bank accounts and not in God, we are extremely vulnerable to anxiety and fear. Trusting in the things of this world causes us to cling too tightly to our gifts. When we place our trust exclusively in our good and gracious God who knows our needs, (Matthew 6:32) we discover the freedom to joyfully share our gifts. Go ahead, let go and trust God. He will not be outdone in generosity.
